

206.623.4494
info@ICWashington.org
600 Stewart Street, Suite 600
Seattle, Washington 98101
ICWashington.org

Videos and other resources for developing advocacy skills

If you've never done advocacy work before, here are some resources that will help you think about how the engage with the legislative process.

Use Your Voice to Shape the Future videos:

1. Get ready to use your voice
2. Submit written testimony
3. Testify in a committee hearing
4. Take action on the legislative website

Washington Student Engagement Networks (WA-SEN) Worksheets:

- Sharing your story
- Finding your voice
- Get ready for testimony
- Scheduling appointments with legislators

Here are some ways that you can be strong advocates:

- Meet with legislators individually
- Host a town hall at your campus
- Testify on legislation
- Write an op ed piece
- Talk to your friends, family, others about the issue

You can also tag us on social media to share how financial aid has made a positive impact.

- @StudentAidWA or #SaveStudentAidWA
- x.com/StudentAidWA
- instagram.com/studentaidwa

Finally, we also want to share this Seattle Times Article that includes a survey—another great way to make your voice count: WA's college financial aid program is facing cutbacks | The Seattle Times

And if you're open to speaking with a reporter and sharing your experience more publicly, feel free to reach out to us directly. We'd love to help you tell your story.

Thanks again for being part of this movement. Your voice truly makes a difference.

Sheila Steiner, Ph.D.

Senior Director, Policy and Community Engagement
sheila@icwashington.org

Tyler Zamira

Government Relations and Scholarship Program Coordinator
tyler@ICWashington.org