

GONZAGA UNIVERSITY
College of Arts and Sciences
Department of Religious Studies
Degree: M. A. in Religious Studies

Religious Studies graduate students will:

- Understand the Christian theological tradition in its historical contexts and in the contemporary setting.
- Understand and be able to explain distinct theological perspectives.
- Develop an appreciation of and be able to identify interreligious, ecumenical, multicultural and global characteristics of contemporary theologies, especially their emphasis on justice and peacemaking.
- Conduct and present research at an advanced academic level.