

Music

Gonzaga's students and faculty integrate musical excellence and innovation through a liberal arts education that includes performances, festivals, tours, interdisciplinary collaborations, and research. Majors and non-majors alike combine their passion for music with pursuing lives of leadership and service for the common good. Musical artists enable our community, nation, and world to inspire others, to creatively seek new solutions, and to build bridges among diverse people.

THE PROGRAM

Over 500 students enroll in Music courses, ensembles, and lessons each semester. Gonzaga values student-mentor relationships and students benefit from small classes, leadership opportunities, and faculty-sponsored internships and research fellowships. All students enrolled in ensembles or lessons have access to newly refurbished practice rooms and a technology lab with keyboard interfaces, allowing students to compose, edit, and arrange music. Gonzaga's music alumni are successful music educators, performers, church musicians, composers, and arts administrators, and many continue studying in prestigious graduate programs.

Gonzaga University is accredited as full member of the National Association of Schools of Music.

These small jazz groups (4-7 players) develop improvisational skills, become familiar with performance etiquette, and learn to transcribe/arrange tunes using the music notation program Sibelius. Jazz Combos focus 50% on traditional live performances and 50% on learning how to record audio and video, mix and master audio, video edit, and present a competent visual/aural representation of their music in an online format.

Symphony Orchestra

Comprised of students, faculty, and community members, the orchestra hosts nationally distinguished soloists, the Young Artists' Concerto, and Aria Competition for students.

Chamber Ensembles
